

U.S. Army Reserve Aviation Command

The U.S. ARMY RESERVE AVIATION COMMAND (ARAC) based in Ft Knox, KY provides Command and Control for all Army Reserve aviation.

With more than 4,400 Soldiers, 600 Civilians and 230 aircraft in 12 states, the ARAC is one-of-a-kind, providing Command and Control for all Army Reserve aviation, air assault, air movement, aeromedical evacuation, and inter- and intra- theater transportation.

The United States Army Reserve is working toward approval of replacing two hangars at Godman Army Airfield. Construction would bolster local jobs and opportunities. Approval of the first hangar will cost the U.S. government an estimated $131.2 million as of 15 NOV 23.

ARAC UNITS AT FT KNOX

ARAC Headquarters ★

244th Expeditionary Combat Aviation Brigade

8-299th Assault Helicopter Battalion with six companies

C/5-159th MEDEVAC Company

B/6-52nd Fixed Wing Company

F/5-159th Air Traffic Services Company

an aviation maintenance detachment

an Aviation Support Facility

Over 800 Soldiers and 200 Civilians working and living in Kentucky with their families.

